

MICHAEL PENN

Mr. Hollywood Jr., 1947

Michael Penn didn't set out to make a record about post-war America in the year 1947, but somehow the subject sought him out. Originally released in 2005, Mr. Hollywood Jr., 1947, while informed by history, is more akin to a collection of short, vivid, interconnected stories. Penn cut most of Mr. Hollywood Jr. at home with a small crew of longtime collaborators. Among them are keyboardist Patrick Warren, who has worked closely with Penn since his 1989 debut, March; spouse Aimee Mann, who provides occasional background vocals and bass; and Penn's sometimes road-mate Buddy Judge, a former member of cult L.A. super-group The Grays, offering harmony vocals.

Now with a bonus disc of exclusive live material recorded at KCRW, Mr. Hollywood Jr., 1947 is re-released for rediscovery. Also included in this deluxe digi-package is the previously unreleased video for "Walter Reed."
